The IFBB Houston Pro Show, promoted by NPC District Chairman Lee Thompson, went off without a single hitch on July 4th-- our country's birthday. As expected, pre-contest favorites Silvio Samuel and Craig Richardson battled for the 1-2 spot.

The IFBB Houston Pro Show, promoted by NPC District Chairman Lee Thompson, went off without a single hitch on July 4th-- our country's birthday. As expected, pre-contest favorites Silvio Samuel and Craig Richardson battled for the 1-2 spot. Despite Richardson's superior size and presentation, Samuel wowed the crowd with his tiny waist and mind-boggling conditioning. While no final decision have been made, it'll be interesting how this battle plays itself out.

Darkhorse Leo Ingram surprised the lineup by bringing a ripped, densely -muscled, physique to the stage. If Ingram can hold on till tomorrow night, he should be a lock for 3rd and a qualification for the Mr. Olympia in late September.

Bill Wilmore brought a much improved upper body along with superb conditioning. Although he lacks the size necessary to steal a show from the likes of a Silvio Samuel or Craig Richardson, his polished looks should make him a cinch for 4th place.

5th and 6th place is a tossup between the massive German, Armin Scholz, and an out-of-shape Darrem Charles. Truth be told, Darrem is at least 3 weeks away from being ready to role; however, his superb shape and presentation make him appear better than he really is. Scholz may be lacking in the leg department but I feel he's done enough on this day to lock up 5th over the veteran, Charles.
