

Michael Liberatore Wins 1st MD Cyber Classic Sponsored by Xenadrine & Kemistry

Contributed by Dave Palumbo
Thursday, 08 March 2007

Michael Liberatore of Louisville, Kentucky, won the hotly contested 1st Annual MD CYBER CLASSIC this past weekend at the ARNOLD EXPO in Columbus, OH. Liberatore was joined by other finalists, Joe Downs, Taylor Boyd Jr, Craig Miles, and Herb Nordheimer, up on the stage at the extremely popular MuscularDevelopment.com. Special thank you to the sponsors of the event...Xenadrine & Kemistry.

THE RIGHT STUFF

Michael Liberatore of Louisville, Kentucky, won the hotly contested 1st Annual KEMISTRY and XENADRINE MD CYBER CLASSIC this past weekend at the ARNOLD EXPO in Columbus, OH. Liberatore was joined by the other 4 finalists, Joe Downs, Taylor Boyd Jr, Craig Miles, and Herb Nordheimer, up on the stage at the extremely popular MuscularDevelopment.com booth. According to head judge, the legendary FLEX WHEELER, "The contest was extremely competitive and all the finalists should be congratulated."

Muscular Development owner, Steve Blechman, said that this was the biggest online bodybuilding contest of all time with the greatest prizes. He indicated that because of the success of this contest, next year's event will be even bigger and better.

All the Cyber Classic contestants were flown out the ARNOLD, put up at the HYATT ON CAPITAL SQUARE (where Arnold stays) and photographed by ace MD photographer PER BERNAL. The winner, Michael Liberatore won an exclusive MD magazine contract worth $10,000 and he earned the right to appear on the cover of Muscular Development magazine. Look for these 5 men as well as the entire MD CYBER CLASSIC contest to be featured in an upcoming issue of MD.

